Destiny

by rainbowpoptarts11

Category: Brave, 2012, How to Train Your Dragon
Genre: Adventure, Friendship
Language: English
Characters: Hiccup, Merida
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2013-04-02 02:33:24
Updated: 2014-04-12 17:01:45
Packaged: 2016-04-26 13:48:08
Rating: K+
Chapters: 15
Words: 5,707
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: The Guardian of Fun. A princess/archer. A dragon trainer. And a princess with magic healing powers and a frying pan. These four are so different, yet they are about to go on the biggest adventure of their lives. Jackunzel x Merricup

1. Chapter 1

Rapunzel sighed sadly as she looked out her window at the falling snow. "I wish I could go outside." She knew that snow was cold, but she'd never really experienced it. "Well then, come on out!" Rapunzel jumped, hearing the voice. She turned around, and not seeing anybody, reached for her trusty frying pan. "Who's there?" She called out. She turned and looked back outside the window, and... "BOO!" Jack Frost jumped at the poor girl. "Ahhhh!" Rapunzel shrieked as she swung her frying pan all over the place. "Hey, hey! Take it easy!" Jack put his hands up in surrender, trying to avoid the deadly frying pan. "Okay, okay! You win! You win!" But Rapunzel wasn't listening. Jack eventually grabbed the frying pan from her grasp. Rapunzel then backed away, into a corner of her bedroom. "Hey, it's alright!" Jack said gently. "Please! D-don't hurt me!" Rapunzel whimpered, her slender body shaking in sheer fear. He took her hand. "I'm Jack. Jack Frost." He said. "What's your name?" Rapunzel jumped at his chilly touch. "R-Rapunzel." "I'm not going to hurt you, Rapunzel." "Promise?" Rapunzel asked cautiously. "I've never been more serious in my life!" Jack replied. "Now, didn't you just say you wanted to go outside?" Rapunzel sighed. "Yes, but Mother won't let me." Jack let go of her small hand. "Do you trust me?" Rapunzel bit her bottom lip thoughtfully. After a moment, she replied, "Yes." "Then come here." Jack held out his hand. In his other hand was a long staff that she hadn't noticed before. Rapunzel stepped closer to him. Jack put his arm around her thin waist. She laid her hands on his chest. Jack looked at her hands, then smirked. "Um, you might want to hold on tighter." "Why?" Rapunzel asked, innocently confused. "Because we're going to fly." Before Rapunzel could respond, he jumped out of her tower window. Rapunzel looked down, then immediately buried her face in his neck. "Don't worry. I won't drop you." And that was the beginning of their journey.

2. Chapter 2

"Mum, do I HAVE to go to this party?" Merida complained as her mother struggled to get her into a tight dress. "For the last time, Merida, YES!" Queen Elinor scolded. "There! Oh, it does look nice on you, dear!" "It's too tight!" Merida whined. "You'll have to get used to it." Elinor gently scolded. "Why?" Merida asked. "Because, Merida, you're a princess, and you have to learn that image is everything." "But I don't want to be all proper or anything. I want my freedom!" Merida exclaimed desperately. "But are you willing to pay the price your freedom will cost?" Elinor asked. "Anything!" Merida begged. "Well, we'll talk about that later. Right now, you're going to that party!" "Ugh!"

Merida strolled into the party with her arms swinging in front of her as she grumpily pushed past people at the party. She wasn't paying attention to where she was going and- BAM! Merida bumped straight into a boy. Both tumbling to the ground, Merida groaned and rubbed her forehead, ready to pound whichever one of her younger brothers had caused this accident. But as she looked at the person across from her, she realized it wasn't one of her brothers. It was a boy her age, with shaggy brown and green eyes. "I-I'm s-sorry." He stuttered, helping her up. "It's alright." Merida said mesmerized by his features. She shook her head. _Stop it, Merida! You don't crush on boys! _Merida thought to herself. Just then the boy realized who he had just bumped into. "Oh my gosh!" The boy gasped. "Y-you're the princess? I'm so so so sorry!" "I said it's alright!" Merida said, chuckling. "I'm Merida." She said, extending her hand. "I'm Hiccup." Hiccup shook her outstretched hand. _Man, _he thought. _She's really pretty._ "W-wanna dance?" Hiccup asked. "Um, sure!" And they danced the rest of the night

3. Chapter 3

"Where are we going, Jack?" Rapunzel asked curiously, clutching Jack's blue hoodie. "I don't know. I guess we could just land here." Jack replied. "Oh, okay!" Rapunzel chirped. As they landed, they heard voices approaching. "Jack! What was that?" Rapunzel asked, frightened. "Shhhh, I don't know." Jack whispered back, raising his staff. They couldn't have known that Merida and Hiccup were nearby; now they were good friends. "So, you have a dragon?" Merida asked excitedly. "Yeah, his name's Toothless." Hiccup answered proudly. "Where is he?" Merida looked around, confused. "Well, I wanted to give him a chance to explore. But, if you want to meet him, I could just call him. Do you want to meet him?" "Yes, please!" Merida did a little jump from all her excitement. Hiccup chuckled. "All right, then!" He whistled like you would whistle to a dog. "Toothless! Come here!" Meanwhile, Jack and Rapunzel heard something flapping its wings. "AHHHHHHHHHH!" Rapunzel shrieked pointing. "What? What is it?" Jack looked around nervously. "D-" Rapunzel stuttered. "D-d-" "Spit it out!" Jack exclaimed. "DRAGON!" Rapunzel screamed, ducking. "Oh my go-" Jack was cut off as he ducked just in time under the landing dragon. Rapunzel latched herself onto Jack, trembling badly from fear. "There you are, Toothless!" Hiccup exclaimed. "Oh. My. GOSH!" Merida shrieked. "A dragon! Can I touch him?" She asked Hiccup.

"Yeah, sure! He's friendly!" "Is this your dragon?" Jack asked. "Yep." Hiccup replied happily. "I-is he going to hurt us?" Rapunzel asked, not letting go of Jack, but pointing her frying pan in Toothless's direction, shaking. "He's amazing!" Merida whispered, her breath taken away. She began to scratch Toothless in his favorite spot on his belly, making his eyes become half-lidded as he flopped over on his side. Jack and Rapunzel began to cautiously approach the beast, Jack curious, Rapunzel already hugging it. "I'm Hiccup." Hiccup greeted them cheerfully, extending his hand. "I'm Jack Frost and this is my friend, Rapunzel." Jack shook his hand, Hiccup jumping from the sudden cold. "Oh my gosh!" Merida perked up upon hearing this. "This day just keeps on getting better and better! THE Jack Frost?" "Yep. The one and only." Jack answered, flattered. "I'm Merida!" "Nice to meet you guys!" Rapunzel said. Just then, Merida noticed Rapunzel's long, long, long golden hair. "Your hair is beautiful!" Merida said, leaving Toothless and walking over to stroke her hair. "Thanks! I love your hair, too!" Rapunzel said, truthfully. She had never seen hair quite like Merida's. "Girls." Jack mumbled to Hiccup. "Yeah. I know, right?" Hiccup responded. "So, anyway, cool dragon!" "Thanks! His name's Toothless!" Hiccup grinned. "Hey! I've got an idea!" Rapunzel suddenly perked up. "Why don't we all go exploring together? That way we can get to know each other a lot better!" "Sure!" The other three all chimed in. Toothless nodded excitedly, nuzzling Rapunzel with his nose. "Looks like Toothless likes you!" Hiccup said. Rapunzel could only giggle, her heart swelling with love for her new friends.

4. Chapter 4

"Ugh, it makes me sick to see them together!" Gothel exclaimed, disgusted. She turned away from the crystal ball as she saw Hiccup, Merida, Rapunzel, and Jack walking through the forest with Toothless. "Have no fear, my darling, for soon they will all be destroyed." Pitch Black soothed. He gave her a quick peck on the mouth and turned to his nightmares. "My friends," He called into the darkness. "Now it is time!" He chuckled. "Let's see, who's the weakest?" Pitch tapped his chin with a long gray finger. "Ahhh, little Rapunzel!" "Wait, Pitch-" Gothel gasped. "Not to worry, my dear," Pitch interrupted. "You will be fine as long as you give yourself to me and pledge your loyalty." "I will! But wait, will I still be young and beautiful?" Gothel asked. "Of course!" Pith said. "All right, then, I'll do it!" "Excellent!" Pitch whispered, sucking the life out of Gothel. She became slightly paler and died. Her lifeless body fell to the ground, but not for long. She slowly rose up. "I feel so alive!" She breathed. "I'm so hungry!" Pitch turned. "Do you want a burger or something?" "No!" Gothel snapped. "I'm hungry for _revenge!_" And they both cackled evilly into the night.

5. Chapter 5

"Hey, you guys! I want to show you something!" Merida exclaimed, clapping her hands. "All right, I guess." Hiccup answered. "What is it?" Rapunzel asked. "This should be good." Jack muttered, sincerely. "You guys are gonna love it! Follow me!" And Merida led them all through the forest until they came to a lake. Rapunzel already knew. "Wooohoooo!" She ran and jumped into the lake. Merida soon followed. Hiccup shrugged, grinning. "Yahhhhh!" And he jumped in. Jack smirked. "Watch this." He flew and did a flip, splashing into the lake. Then Toothless jumped right in. They all splashed and giggled. Jack swam underwater, grabbing Rapunzel's slender waist. "AHHHHHHH!" Rapunzel shrieked, whipping around to face a laughing Jack. "You should have seen your face!" He wiped a tear from his eye. Rapunzel tackled him, both splashing into the water. Little did the friends know that danger was lurking nearby. "Now this is just gross." Pitch snarled to a grimacing Gothel. "Let me handle the blonde." He whispered. "Hey, be my guest!" Gothel replied quietly, yet fierce. "Rapunzel?" Gothel called out like a little girl. Rapunzel's head snapped up, alert. Now, the others couldn't hear her, only Rapunzel. "What is it, Rapunzel?" Hiccup asked, confused. Toothless flew and blocked Rapunzel's way; he could smell Gothel and Pitch. But Rapunzel still walked out of the water, into the dark side of the dangerous forest. "Rapunzel? Wait!" Merida said, worried. Jack had a look of despair and fear on his face. Soon Pitch emerged, wrapping his gray fingers Rapunzel's thin wrist. She snapped out of her trance, frightened. "Jack!" She tried to run back, but Pitch held fast. "Now where do you think you're going, Brat?" Pitch snickered evilly. "Hey!" They all shouted. Toothless jumped on a startled Pitch, who had to let go of Rapunzel. She scrampled back and ran into Jack's open waiting arms. He took off into the air, Rapunzel in his arms. Hiccup picked up Merida bridal style, threw her onto Toothless's back and quickly followed Jack and Rapunzel. "I can climb, thank you very much!" Merida laughed, playfully smacking the back of Hiccup's head. "Um, now's not really the time, Merida." Hiccup answered, though he was giggling too. And they all left Pitch on the ground, cursing them.

6. Chapter 6

"Are you okay?" Jack asked Rapunzel tenderly. Rapunzel nodded. "Yeah." She got up and looked around. They were in a dim cave, a small fire lit, glowing in the darkness. "Toothless and Hiccup helped provide the fire." Merida said. "How are you feeling?" Hiccup asked. "Yes, you guys, really, I'm fine." Rapunzel picked up her frying pan. "It's not that I couldn't handle him, I was just in shock." She looked from Hiccup to Toothless, then from Merida to Jack. They locked eyes. Nobody noticed Hiccup slowly inching closer to Merida. "I think we should find a place of our own. Just the five of us." Jack announced. "We could be a good team against Pitch and that weird old lady." He glanced at Toothless proudly. "Ehem, that 'weird old lady' is my mom!" Rapunzel punched his arm playfully. "Um, actually, no she's not." Hiccup said. "I did a bit of reading, and the description of the lost princess fits you perfectly." "Wow." Merida muttered. "He really _is_ smart." "What was that, Merida? We didn't quite hear." Jack cupped his ear and leaned towards Merida, smirking. "Oh, shut up!" Merida whacked him with her bow. "Ow! That actually hurt!" Jack rubbed his sore arm. "Rapunzel already smacked me, jeez!" "Don't mess with me!" Merida growled playfully. "Oh! You guys!" Rapunzel jumped up and down exitedly. "I know the perfect place!" Then she ran out of the cave, hair flowing behind her. "Cool!" Hiccup jumped on Toothless and they followed Rapunzel. Jack and Merida shrugged and followed. "Um, Jack?" Rapunzel turned to Jack, arms outstretched, frying pan still in hand. "Alright." He wrapped his arms around her, and took off in the air. Hiccup grabbed an unsuspecting Merida, pulling her up on Toothless's back. "Wha-?" Merida started, but Hiccup interrupted. "Wrap your arms around me or fall off." "Oy!" Merida groaned and wrapped her arms around his waist as they all flew to find Rapunzel's suggestion.

7. Chapter 7

"Ugh!" Pitch threw another ball of nightmare sand against the wall of his dark lair. "I was so close!" He jumped when he felt Gothel's hand on his shoulder. "Don't worry, darling, we'll get them all next time." He took her hand in his long gray fingers. "My dear, you must answer me this. Is Rapunzel weak?" He pecked her cheek. "Pitch, she is only weak when she is alone with no one to love her and no one for her to love." Gothel pressed her red lips against Pitch's black ones, and their lips moved together for a moment. Pitch pulled away. "Gothel, you are truly a goddess. And-" "And I know what you are capable of once you know their deepest darkest fears." Gothel interrupted, kissing him once more. She wrapped her arms around his neck, and Pitch slithered his arms around her waist. They pressed their bodies closer together, then slowly, they both started to giggle. They pulled away, threw their heads back, and laughed a sinister, evil laugh. "They will be finished!" Pitch exclaimed, giggling. "We'll crush them! I know all of their weaknesses!" Gothel laughed, gasping for air. They collapsed on the black floor, laughing the night away.

8. Chapter 8

Jack, Rapunzel, Hiccup, Toothless, and Merida all arrived to a large house. It was made of wood, and it was perfect. There was a wooden fence that stretched far back (with enough to build a large area of shelter for Toothless.) and all the way around the house. "It's perfect for us, don't you think?" Rapunzel asked, giggling. "Yeah!" Hiccup said. Toothless snorted in response. Jack flew down and set Rapunzel and himself on the ground. Hiccup landed Toothless and climbed off. He reached up and wrapped his arms around Merida's waist as she placed her hands on his shoulders. After he helped her down, Merida punched him in the arm. "I can get down myself!" There was a moment of awkward silence as Rapunzel played with a strand of her hair, Jack rubbed the back of his neck, Hiccup rubbed his sore arm, Toothless looked around from person to person, and Merida picked at her bow. "HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!" They all burst out laughing at the same time, Merida throwing her head back, Rapunzel holding her stomach, and Jack and Hiccup rolling on the ground. Toothless's eyes looked something like this: O.O

The laughter died down to giggles. Jack and Hiccup climbed to their feet, dusting themselves off. "Ehem. What was so funny again?" Jack asked, dusting off his staff. "I don't know." Merida replied, wiping her eyes with her sleeve. "So, um, let's go check out the house." Hiccup suggested. "Alright! I hope you guys don't mind that it's in the middle of the forest." Rapunzel said apologetically. "No, no it's fine!" Jack said, and he wrapped his arm around her shoulders. She didn't pull his hand away, but she felt heat forming in her cheeks. Hiccup put an arm around Merida's shoulders. Merida's head slowly turned to face Hiccup. He smiled. BAM! Hiccup was on the ground. Rapunzel and Jack turned around, when they saw, they both giggled. Rapunzel opened the door, and peered inside. It was to dark to see anything, and when she tried to step inside, Jack stopped her. "It's too dark. What if Pitch is in there?" He looked worried. "It's okay, Jack. We took him last time, and we can do it again." "Um guys?" Hiccup got everyone's attention and pointed. A tall dark figure was coming towards them. "Are you so sure about that, sweet Rapunzel?" As Pitch got closer, they saw a woman with him. "Mother?" Rapunzel whispered. "Shut it, Rapunzel! I'm not your mother!" Gothel snarled. Toothless stepped in front of the four teens, just in case Pitch and Gothel got too close. Pitch scoffed. "As if that beast could really stop us!" He came right up to the dragon's face. Jack, Merida, Hiccup, and Rapunzel stepped in front of Toothless and pushed Pitch back a few steps. "Maybe not by himself, but together we can!" Merida practically spat in his face. "I'm not here for you... today..." Pitch shot nightmare sand in Rapunzel's eyes as a piercing scream filled the air. Gothel's cackle filled their ears as they looked to an unconscious Rapunzel...

9. Chapter 9

As soon as she saw Rapunzel hit the ground, Merida immediately pulled an arrow and shot Pitch in the chest. Not that it really did any good. "Hahaha! Foolish girl!" And Pitch shot an arrow of his own right back at her. "Toothless! NO!" Hiccup's cry was too late as Toothless jumped in front of Merida and took the arrow. Black swirled around him as he fell down... dead. "Oh my God." Merida knelt down and for once, cried over Toothless. Hiccup also knelt down, a few tears streaming down his face. "YOU!" And he ran at Pitch, throwing his fists wherever he thought he would hit him. "This is all your doing. You are all so weak!" Pitch grabbed both of Hiccup's wrists and threw him against the wall of the house. Merida decided to try something different, and shot Gothel with an arrow instead. What she didn't know was that Gothel became immortal, like Pitch. It still made Gothel gasp a little as she stumbled back and looked down at the arrow buried in her stomach. Then her cackle pierced the air as she pulled it out clean; not one drop of blood. "STOP!" A voice was heard, but it wasn't Merida's or Jack's. Rapunzel stood up, shakily, mind you. She turned to the two villains, who were in shock that she was still alive. She didn't have one scratch or bruise. "Impossible..." Pitch whispered. "You. Need. To. Leave... NOW!" Her voice echoed through the forest, even scaring a few birds. Pitch turned to Gothel, then back to the teens. "I'll be back!" and he wrapped an arm around Gothel and disappeared into the shadows. Merida gasped. "Hiccup!" She ran over to him and knelt down. She cradled his head in her arms. "Please don't die on me." She whispered, kneeling down and placing a light kiss on his forehead. "Rapunzel, do you think you could help?" Jack asked the blonde quietly. "I'll see what I can do." Rapunzel walked over to Hiccup and wrapped her hair around his chest. "Merida, I can't heal him if he's... dead." Rapunzel whispered. "But if he's breathing even a little, I can." She closed her eyes and began to sing.

"Flower, gleam and glow

Let your power shine

Make the clock reverse

Bring back what once was mine

Heal what has been hurt

Change the Fate's design

Save what has been lost

Bring back what once was mine

What once was mine"

Rapunzel, Merida, and Jack looked at Hiccup. Slowly, he opened his eyes. "Whoa." He said and his eyes looked up to see Merida still holding his head. "Um," But he didn't get a chance to finish as two screaming, giggling girls attacked him with a hug. When they all got up, Merida yelled, "Hiccup! You're alive!" She put her hands on his cheeks and pulled him toward her, their lips crashing together. Upon realizing what she'd done, Merida pulled away, her breathing ragged. "Oh, whatever." She was beyond caring, and she kissed him again, this time wrapping her arms around his neck. Hiccup was still kind of shocked that the girl of his dreams was kissing him right now, but he soon got used to it and wrapped his arms around her waist, pulling her closer. They pulled away and looked at Jack's and Rapunzel's faces: O.O

"GROUP HUG!" Rapunzel screamed, running towards Merida and Hiccup, pulling Jack along behind her. "Rapunzel? Whoa!" and he was yanked into the hug. Just then Jack felt something nudge his shoulder. And it felt like it was breathing on him. He turned. "TOOTHLESS!" They all yelled. Then Toothless got attacked with a freaking HUGE hug. "Thank God." Jack whispered.

10. Chapter 10

Meanwhile, back at North's workshop, Tooth, North, and Bunnymund were arguing about what color to paint some toy robots. "No! They are my robots, and I say red!" North exclaimed. "I disagree, mate. I say paint 'em blue!" Bunnymund argued. "You guys are both wrong! I like the color MAGENTA!" Tooth screamed excitedly. Sandy looked up and saw Manny, who was starting to move his light. Sandy waved his arms and jumped up and down, but no one paid any attention. He ended up tackling Tooth, knocking her to the ground. "Sandy, what has gotten into you, my friend?" The Russian man asked. Sandy pointed to Manny. "Manny wants something?" Tooth asked. Sandy nodded enthusiastically. "Oi mate, he's choosin' a new guardian." Bunnymund realized. "No. He's choosing three!" In the middle of the four, there was a boy with shaggy hair and a furry vest, a girl with curly hair and a bow and arrows, and another girl with long, long, _long_ hair piled on the ground beside her, a frying pan in hand. "What? That's never been done before!" Bunnymund whispered. "But wait! Those three aren't... I mean, they're alive! They have their own lives to live still!" Tooth said. "Apparently, Manny thinks we need help. We will go get them tomorrow!" North announced. "Now, go home! I have work to do!"

11. Chapter 11

Hiccup, Rapunzel, Merida, and Jack were asleep in the room upstairs, while Toothless slept in the living room downstairs; they hadn't built anything for him yet. There was one huge bed, so they shared it. Merida didn't notice how much she'd snuggled up to Hiccup. Rapunzel didn't care what the others thought; she just wrapped her arms around Jack and didn't let go. Just then, there was a big crash. Someone had broken in their window. They all woke up, alarmed.

Rapunzel reached under her pillow and slowly pulled out her frying pan. Jack, keeping one arm protectively around Rapunzel, reached over and grabbed his staff that was leaning beside the bed. Hiccup knew Toothless would come any moment, and Merida had her bow and arrow ready. "You'd better leave, or else!" Hiccup said calmly. "Jack, how can you let him talk like that to an old friend?" A jolly voice with a Russian accent bellowed. "North?" Jack asked, squinting through the darkness. Merida jumped out of bed and turned on the lights. "AHHHHHHHHHHH! SANTA CLAUSE!" Merida yelled, and ran to him. She jumped up and down excitedly, then hugged him as hard as she could. "You believe, still at this age?" North asked, confused. "Yep. I met Jack Frost, so imagine the possibilities." Merida replied, her voice muffled by his thick jacket. North pried her arms from around him and placed them at her sides. "O-kay?" Hiccup said. Just then, Toothless poked his head in the room. "Ahhh, you have a dragon?" North asked, then strutted right over to pat Toothless on the head. Toothless looked at Rapunzel, confused. She shrugged. She, Hiccup, and Jack climbed out of the bed and everyone just kind of stood around, confused. "So! You're probably wondering why I'm here." North said. "Um, yeah." Jack answered. "Well, Hiccup, Merida, and Rapunzel have been chosen to be... GUARDIANS!" North yelled. He looked at them expectantly. "Really?" Jack looked at Rapunzel. "You guys are gonna be guardians! But wait." Jack paused. "North, they still have lives." He looked sadly at Rapunzel, then at Hiccup and Merida. "I don't know, and I don't care. They were chosen, so don't ask me, ask him." North pointed, then said, "Follow me!" He jumped out the window and into his sleigh. "No, just, no." Hiccup muttered. He grabbed Merida's hand and ran downstairs to Toothless (Who had gotten tired and went back downstairs to sleep.). He woke Toothless up and they ran outside and jumped on. Soon they were flying beside North. Jack and Rapunzel looked at each other. Jack flew outside, waiting for her. "Jump." He said. "Are you crazy?" Rapunzel tightened her hold on her frying pan. "I'll catch you. Come on, it'll be fun!" Jack replied, a lopsided grin spreading on his face. Rapunzel took a deep breath. She closed her eyes and ran. She jumped out the window. She knew she was falling. "Rapunzel open your eyes!" Jack called. Rapunzel opened her eyes, and quickly shut them again when she saw that she was going to hit the ground. Then, she felt something holding her. It was cold, and she knew who it was. She opened her eyes again and looked into Jack's blue ones. "Now do you trust me?" He asked. She simply smacked the back of his head. Jack laughed, then flew as fast as he could to catch up with the others.

12. Chapter 12

As they all arrived at North's workshop, Tooth met Jack and Rapunzel halfway there. She was didn't like Rapunzel; she had a crush on Jack and felt that Rapunzel was taking him away from her. Tooth flirted with Jack the whole way there, but he wasn't really paying attention. He was more focused on talking with Rapunzel. Meanwhile up front, Merida tightened her grip on Hiccup. "I need to talk to you when we land, Hiccup." She whispered. "Alright." He whispered back, wondering what she could possibly want to talk about. They landed shortly in front of North's workshop. Bunnymund and Sandy were already waiting for them. Hiccup landed Toothless and helped Merida down, who grabbed his hand and yanked him off somewhere to talk. Jack set Rapunzel down, but when he saw Bunnymund, he didn't let go of her or his staff. Rapunzel ripped away from his arm though, when she saw Sandy. She thought it was cool that he didn't talk. Jack walked over and whispered in her ear. "Uh, no one really understands him, Rapunzel." She shivered slightly when she felt his icy breath, but she looked into his eyes, bewildered. "I can understand him just fine. He said 'Welcome, new guardians!'" Sandy took her hand and led her off to talk some more. Jack shrugged. At the same time, Merida was getting her courage up to tell Hiccup something important. "I don't usually go for this kind of thing, but... I..." She paused, scared. "What?" Hiccup asked, confused. Before Merida could say anything, Hiccup felt something snap. He leaned in and kissed her. Not like the spur of the moment thing Merida did when Rapunzel healed him. No, this was different. He pulled away. "I knew we liked each other, but, Hiccup, I love you." Merida whispered. Hiccup pulled her close. "I love you too."

"Where's Hiccup and Merida, mate?" Bunnymund asked Jack. "We're here! We just had to talk about some things." Merida called, answering his question before Jack did. She was pulling Hiccup along behind her. "Look!" Jack pointed. Manny was shining his light on someone. "Rapunzel!" Merida gasped. Rapunzel slowly began to lose consciousness. When she was unconscious, She rose up, floating with nothing under her. A bright light began to show through her body inside out, making everyone squint and shield their eyes. Soon she was completely hidden, and there was nothing but a ball of light. The light floated down to the ground, and slowly began to fade, showing Rapunzel. Nothing had changed, but her hair was in a beautiful, thick braid, decorated with different colored flowers. She pushed herself up, yawning and stretching. She looked around. "I feel... different, somehow." She said, standing up. Next the light shone on Hiccup, and the same thing happened. When he woke up, his foot was gone, replaced by a metal contraption. "Oh, come on! What is this?" He threw his hands up in the air, annoyed. Last, but not least, Merida. When she woke up, Her dress had changed from green to a light bluish color, with gold trim. She gasped for breath. "It's too tight!" She gasped. "It'll stretch out." Tooth explained. "What is your center?" North asked the three. "Creativity." Rapunzel answered. "Change." Hiccup. "Courage." Merida. "Good, good!" North clapped his giant hands together. "Tomorrow we find out your powers!"

13. Chapter 13

"NOOO!" Pitch slammed his fists on the wall, his breathing heavy, his temper flaring. "This can't happen!" He yelled. "What is it, darling?" Gothel asked, appearing behind him, placing her hands on his shoulders. "The Moon has given the little brats powers and made them guardians." Pitch snarled, gritting his teeth. "Don't worry dear, we'll destroy them soon enough." Gothel soothed, stroking his hair softly. "They won't know what hit them!" Pitch answered, beginning to calm down. "I know a few spells that ought to weaken them." Gothel suggested. "I'll go look for some spell books." She turned and disappeared into a shadowy corner. "We have unfinished business; I'll make that cursed Man in Moon pay!" Pitch said to himself, a sinister plan already forming in his sick mind.

A/N: So so so sorry for the short chapter! I'm super busy! Thanks to all my readers!

14. Chapter 14

"Alright!" North clapped his large hands together once. Everyone had gone down to Bunnymund's warren to see the three new guardians' powers. "Let's see what you can do, eh?" Hiccup, Merida, and Rapunzel looked at each other expectantly. After a few moments, Hiccup cleared his throat. "I-I'll go, I guess." He stepped forward, and paused, trying to think of what to do. He slowly knelt down and ran his hand along the grass gently. Suddenly, a gust of wind flew through the group, along with a few orange, red, and yellow leaves. Rapunzel giggled, Merida gasped along with the others, and Jack's signature lopsided grin spread onto his face. "I think I know what I am," Hiccup muttered, standing up. He raised his hands, and in his mind, began to coax the wind and leaves again. _Come on, come on, come on!_ Hiccup squeezed his eyes shut, continuing the little chant. All of a sudden, a whirlwind of autumn leaves spun around him, out of nowhere. When he lowered his hands, the tornado of leaves stopped spinning and dropped to the ground. "I'm guess I'm the Guardian of Autumn." This time Hiccup was the one with the lopsided grin. "Good, good! Now who's next?" Tooth asked excitedly. Both Rapunzel's and Merida's hands shot up in the air, waving like there was no tomorrow. Sandy grinned and nodded towards Rapunzel, who gave a little "Yes!" before bounding forward. She looked around, deciding what she should do. "Ah! I've got it!" The blonde haired girl mumbled, before waving her hands gently over the grass. Slowly, but surely, a single pink rose sprouted from the ground, already blooming. Rapunzel once again giggled in delight at her power. She moved over an inch and tried again. This time, two roses sprouted from the ground, one orange, one red. Merida knelt down beside the flowers, as well as Hiccup and Jack. "I've never seen an orange rose before!" Merida breathed. "Me neither!" Hiccup and Jack agreed. "I just thought of those colors, and that type of flower, and they, well, grew!" Rapunzel shrugged, smiling from ear to ear. Bunnymund grinned, happy that she had a power that was the same time as Easter. He wrapped a furry arm around her shoulders, before sticking his tongue out at Jack. "Guess she's the Guardian of Spring, mate." Merida pushed everyone back. "Alright, it's my turn, everyone move back!" She marched to the center of the circle and dropped to the ground, touching the grass. Almost immediately, the grass began to grow. It turned even greener than before, if possible, and when the wild haired girl stood, it stopped growing. "I knew it!" She cheered, while Tooth clapped enthusiastically. "I'm the Guardian of Summer!"

15. Chapter 15

"Oh, look! The little brats have discovered their powers!" A sinister voice echoed throughout the warren. Everyone looked up, only to see Gothel slowly heading towards them. Jack rolled his icy blue eyes. "Not you again!" He muttered. Merida snickered, covering her mouth with a dainty hand. Gothel scowled at the white haired boy. "Brat!" She spat, the back of her hand meeting Merida's cheek with a sickening _smack._ Rapunzel frowned, and she felt a strange feeling surge through her. She raised one hand, and a low rumble could be heard throughout the warren, making the evil woman's eyes lower to the ground nervously. Suddenly, an enormous green vine shot up from the ground, splitting the earthy ground beneath them. The blonde girl raised her other hand, directing the vine towards Gothel. It wrapped itself around the black haired woman, squeezing tighter and tighter, until she couldn't even twitch her fingers, let alone escape. "You little â€“ mmmffff!" Gothel was cut off, for a large orange leaf had stuck itself tightly to her mouth, not allowing her to speak.

Rapunzel looked to Hiccup, who gave a small smile, shrugging. "Hey, it was getting annoying!" Merida giggled once again. "My turn..." She muttered, raising her hands. It suddenly began to feel very hot, and it was only getting hotter. The sun shone brighter than usual, and Merida cast its rays directly upon Gothel. The sinister woman shifted uncomfortably, humming in discomfort. Before Jack could finish it off, a shadow was cast over the warren. Even though she couldn't speak, Gothel began to laugh uncontrollably, cackling through her gag. "You didn't really think you could have this little party without _me, _did you?" Pitch's unmistakable voice boomed. Tooth gasped, backing up a few feet behind Bunnymund, who growled, pulling out his boomerangs. North drew his swords, while Sandy got his sand ready. Suddenly, Pitch's nightmares rushed in from all directions, wasting no time in attacking. Merida drew an arrow, placing it in her bow, ready to fight. Hiccup hopped onto Toothless' back, Rapunzel doing the same. Jack raised his staff, and flew straight up to Pitch.

"Boo."

End
file.